

Yan Brailowsky

King Lear

William Shakespeare

éditions  sedes

Sommaire

Introduction	7
Le problème éditorial	7
Lecture détaillée	8
Les enjeux dramatiques	8
Remarques sur l'organisation du volume	9
Remerciements	9
Chapter 1 – “ King Lear: What Is It About? ”
Of endings and beginnings	11
1.1 “Is this the promised end?”	12
1.1.1 Ambiguous endings and conflicting texts	13
1.1.1.1 The deaths of Lear, Leir, Leire and Leyr compared	13
1.1.1.2 Editing Lear: the ending in Q1, F, Arden and Oxford	16
1.1.2 Redemption or Apocalypse?	22
1.1.2.1 The Book of Revelation as ultimate ending	22
1.1.2.2 “Produce the bodies, be they alive or dead”	24
1.1.3 Literary constructs: “the sense of an ending”	27
1.1.3.1 History and tragedy: theories on genre	27
1.1.3.2 King Lear as “fiction”	32
1.2 “Prophecy after the event”	34
1.2.1 Beginnings	35
1.2.1.1 Differences between the sources, Q1 and F	35
1.2.1.2 A surprisingly quick succession	40

1.2.2	What happens before the play starts?	42
1.2.2.1	What we know of Lear	42
1.2.2.2	What we know of Lear and Gloucester's children	45
1.2.3	Does Act 1 really announce what comes next?	48
1.2.3.1	The "missing middle"	48
1.2.3.2	Entelechy, dramatic irony and prolepsis vs. fictional endings	51
1.3	Pour aller plus loin	55
	Bibliographie	55
	Questions pour approfondir la réflexion	55
 Chapter 2 – Plots and subplots		 57
2.1	Structure and analogy	58
2.1.1	Origins and function of the Gloucester subplot	58
2.1.1.1	Sidney's Arcadia and the Prince of Paphlagonia	59
2.1.1.2	Dramatizing the subplot: from pastoral to tragedy	61
2.1.1.3	The subplot's "function(s)", "double" plots and Lear's "unity"	67
2.1.2	Sight and blindness: conventional tragic metaphors?	70
2.2	Lear's adjuvants, Cordelia and the Fool	76
2.2.1	Youth vs. old age: Cordelia as "infant" and "child"	77
2.2.2	Of fools and folly	79
2.2.2.1	From "court fool" to stage Fool	80
2.2.2.2	Interpreting the Fool's prophecy: Merlin and merismus	86
2.2.2.3	The Fool: Lear's double?	89
2.2.3	Cordelia and the Fool: doubling roles?	91
2.2.3.1	Disregarding age and gender	91
2.2.3.2	"Foolish honesty": truth-telling and paradoxy	93
2.3	Pour aller plus loin	95
	Bibliographie	95
	Questions pour approfondir la réflexion	96
 Chapter 3 – The purposes of division: (family) politics		 97
3.1	Topicality: taking lessons from History	98
3.1.1	A cruel play for cruel times	98
3.1.2	Decolonization and Lear: what dividing "all" means	101
3.1.3	From Stonehenge to Hobbes	103
3.2	A Jacobean crisis of the king's two bodies?	105
3.2.1	From the Middle Ages to James's Basilikon Doron	106
3.2.2	Division and schize: gazing at the Other	110
3.3	Pour aller plus loin	114
	Bibliographie	114
	Questions pour approfondir la réflexion	115

Chapter 4 – Bastardy	117
4.1 From medieval Vice to modern Machiavelli	117
4.1.1 “In everything illegitimate”: subverting primogeniture	118
4.1.2 Astrology, Nature and property	120
4.2 Rethinking bastardy	124
4.2.1 Treacherous and intercepted letters	124
4.2.2 The fear of uncertain origin(s)	127
4.3 Pour aller plus loin	130
Bibliographie	130
Questions pour approfondir la réflexion	130
Chapitre 5 – De la motion à l’émotion	131
5.1 Exils	131
5.1.1 Aux origines de l’exil : le pharmakos et la Genèse	132
5.1.2 De l’exil à l’errance, ou l’émotion dans l’espace	134
5.2 Interpréter la (dé)possession	136
5.2.1 Possession démoniaque	137
5.2.2 « Reason in madness »	139
5.3 Pour aller plus loin	141
Bibliographie	141
Questions pour approfondir la réflexion	142
Conclusion	143
Bibliographie	147